GETTING READERS

There are now writing in this country several men whose works might properly be classified as works of genius. They are Sinclair Lewis, Theodore Dreiser, James Branch Cabell, Sherwood Anderson, etc. No one disputes their pre-eminence.

These men who had sales of a quarter million copies of their books a few years ago, now are very fortunate to reach sales and reader totals of from 75,000 to 100,000 copies; while the circulating library authors, selling a much smaller number of their books, but all of them to circulating library sources, have reader audiences up into millions.

This will be news to Hollywood and to the producers who are interested in novelists and the people they reach through their works.

The books published by William Godwin and Phoenix Press of the well known circulating library authors such as Don Clarke, Jack Woodford and Sam Felt, going into every circulating library, and book store in this country as fast as they are published, remain in those libraries indefinitely. They are rented out, on an average of 100 times or more. The matter of reader audience then becomes one of simpler mathematics. Ten thousand copies of a given book, read on an average of a hundred times or so, makes a reader audience of approximately a million.

Today there are more than 10,000 circulating libraries in this country. This means that authors like Clarke, Woodford and Fuller are read by more than ten times the number of people than the big name authors.

Defense Given Permission To Examine Papers

MARTINEZ, Feb. 24.—Attorneys Ralph H. Wight and Thomas M. Carlson, counsel for Mrs. Ruth McCord, who was scheduled to go to trial Wednesday before a jury here on a charge of misappropriation of county funds, today asked and secured from Superior Judge A. F. Bray an order directing District Attorney Francis P. Healey to permit them to examine the records in the McCord case.

Papers they desire to scrutinize are those involved in their defense of the charge that Mrs. McCord, former director of the county social service bureau, appropriated to her use $48.98 of county funds indicated by a warrant as having been intended to pay transportation of Mrs. Ida Jackson, 84, an indigent from Richmond to Moffett, Colo.

The district attorney agreed by stipulation to allow the defense attorneys to examine the records. He also stipulated that date of trial be continued from February 25 to February 26.

2 ARRESTED ON DECK OF BATTLESHIP

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 24.—A widespread campaign of young American radicals to sail the United States battle fleet with Communist propaganda was believed uncovered tonight, following the arrest of two women aboard the battleship Mississippi.

Naval and federal authorities said they had five other persons, including two women, under surveillance, in a move to trip up efforts of young radicals asserted to breed dissension among men of the fleet.

QUESTION WOMEN

Department of Justice agents questioned two women, Lucy Wilkes, 34, and Carol Brandt, 32, reported by naval police to have concealed copies of a small pamphlet-like newspaper entitled "Shipmate's Voice," in places aboard the Mississippi where they could be found by members of the ship's personnel.

The pair were held on suspicion of violating a California law against criminal syndicalism, and were lodged in the county jail. Naval investigators, who turned the women over to State authorities, said other copies of the pamphlet, as well as a radical political publication advocating Communist doctrines, were found in possession of the two women.

RED PROBE

Although Department of Justice agents declined to say what other steps were being taken, police said the arrest of the two women was the result of an extended investigation of supposed Communist activities.

Another Suspect Is Arrested In Quentin Probe

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Feb. 24.—Prison officials today committed Joseph Gross, 44, to the dungeon today on suspicion of being a member of a convict gang which made counterfeit money in the prison engraving shop.

Gross, serving a sentence for a Santa Clara county slaying, is the fifth prisoner accused of participation in manufacture of the bogus money. Four paroled convicts also were questioned.

The state board of prison inspectors investigated the situation last week and decided no guards or civilians were involved.

MORE RAIN WILL FALL HERE TODAY

By UNITED PRESS
At Truckee, California, driving snow again closed the Donner highway to Reno-Auburn highway to traffic Monday night as a strong wind piled up snow on the roads almost as quickly as they were cleared. Highway workers said the road would probably remain closed until Tuesday morning.

OCCASIONAL RAINS

Occasional rains were predicted throughout today for most of the State. Little fear was held of flood conditions would be aggravated unless the rain reached heavy proportions.

Richmond experienced its 15th consecutive day of rain yesterday when a torrential downpour swept the city. Hail and sleet were experienced during the day and evening.

Last night shortly after 8 o'clock one of the heaviest downpours of many weeks was experienced. Sleet fell. Storm sewers were taxed to full capacity.

Hawkers' Law Is Framed By Carlson

City Attorney Tom Carlson submitted a sample ordinance to the council, at its meeting last evening, that he believes will solve the control of peddlers and hawkers of merchandise in the city.

Every member of the council was furnished with a copy of the proposed measure as well as the members of the bakers' and grocers' associations, and during this week these different bodies will study the measure. If it conforms to their wishes, the ordinance will come up for first reading next Monday night.

NO LICENSE FEE

"I have given considerable study to this question," said Carlson, "and find that you cannot charge outside more than you do insiders. The courts have ruled on this question many times and as a result."

Changes In Liquor Laws Are Urged

The control of the liquor traffic in the state was the subject of a communication from the California League of Municipalities read at the meeting of the Council last evening.

The question has been investigated very thoroughly by the board of directors of that organization and they recommend to the municipalities of the state they should support a constitutional amendment that will take the handling of the liquor traffic out of the hands of the state board of equalization. They assert that:

1.—The present set-up is unsatisfactory.

Gov. Hoffman Says Witness Was Perjurer

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 24.—UP—Governor Harold G. Hoffman charged tonight that a prosecution witness committed perjury against Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

He added that prosecutors are "making a studied effort" to suppress facts favorable to Hauptmann who is under sentence to die in the week of March 30 for the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

Tonight Hauptmann's chances of escaping death seemed brighter than they have been in two years. He seemed to realize that himself, for this afternoon his lawyer, C. (Continued on Page 8)

Militia Used By Gov. Talmadge In Finance Coup

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 24.—UP—Governor Eugene Talmadge tonight was dictator of Georgia finance by virtue of a quasi-military coup, but faced a battle in the courts to maintain his position.

Although National Guardsmen in full dress two antagonistic officers out of the state capital and installed two Talmadge supporters in their places, Talmadge still had far to go if he is to be successful in his unorthodox efforts to operate Georgia without a budget.

State Treasurer George B. Hamilton and State Controller General W. P. Harrison, ousted by Talmadge because they would not approve his levies on 1936 funds without an appropriation, announced they will file a quo warranto action, asking an injunction.

OURAY, Colo., Feb. 24.—UP—A rescue crew of 25 men worked feverishly tonight to free 20 men imprisoned by a snow avalanche which fell with devastating force upon the Camp Bird mine killing at least three persons. Another was injured so severely he may die.

The death riding avalanche completely demolished a mill and built house of the historic mine—one of the most famous in southwestern Colorado and source of the fabulous fortune of Thomas Walsh, father of Evelyn Walsh McLean, well known woman publisher, which lies nine miles south of here.

Body Sought By Crew of Policemen

An Oakland man fishing for herring from the Richfield dock on the outer harbor, was drowned shortly before 10 o'clock last evening when he fell into the bay.

At a late hour last night a police detail was dragging the bay in an effort to recover the body. So far they have had no success.

OAKLAND RESIDENT

The drowned man was Daniel McGregor, about 60, 424 Moss avenue.

According to an investigation made by police, McGregor had met Gordon W. Robertson, 3371 Mantia street, in Oakland yesterday. McGregor told Robertson that he had been fishing for herring at the local wharves so Robertson decided to try his luck. McGregor came along.

FELL INTO BAY

At the wharf, were McGregor, Robertson and Manuel Rodriguez, 9901 Medford avenue, Oakland and his brother, Joseph Rodriguez, 10320 Periman street Oakland.

According to Manuel Rodriguez, McGregor complained about the cold and rain and started to flap his arms about and stomp his feet in an effort to restore circulation to his benumbed limbs. While doing this the man either stumbled over some obstruction on the dock, or slipped in a puddle and fell from the dock, into the bay below.

RAIN HAMPERED SEARCH

Rodriguez screamed and the men started a rescue attempt. Darkness and rain prevented them from seeing the man in the water. It is believed he sank immediately.

Police were summoned and dragging operations were started.

Oakland officers were contacted and a search was started for the drowned man's relatives.

Lease On Submerged Land Is Exchanged For Wharf Terminal

A new era was opened in connection with the Richmond harbor when the City Council last night drove a bargain with the Parr-Richmond Terminal Corporation, whereby the city comes into possession of Terminal No. 4 and grants a lease to the Parr company for approximately 88 acres in the vicinity of Point San Pablo.

The Council gave the lease its first reading last night and will consider it further at next Monday night's meeting. The vote was unanimous and there was no expression of opinion from the floor.

PLAN WORKED OUT

The area involved is a small portion of the land granted to the city of Richmond by the State Legislature at the last session. The total area of such tide lands is 1430 acres, according to a statement at last night council's meeting by City Manager James A. McVittie. He declared the arrangement is an excellent one for the city whereby the municipality will receive about $3000 a year income with no cost of maintaining the channels and will be able to utilize this income to take care of the cost of operating other features of the harbor program now borne by the taxpayers of the city.

"Mr. Parr and I have worked out a plan whereby the Parr-Richmond Terminal Corporation will turn over to the City of Richmond without cost the wharf and warehouses at Pt. San Pablo, which have an appraised value of $136,000 or a replacement value of $165,000. The city will lease these properties and the submerged lands in connection therewith for 50 years and the City of Richmond will receive 25 percent of the net profits from the operation of the properties.

"Based on present business being done at Pt. San Pablo the profits for the city are estimated at $9,000 a year. The amount will be paid to the drowned man's relatives."

CRASH TALE IS RELATED BY ANDRUS

MARTINEZ, Feb. 24.—A telling and eloquent argument, his maiden effort in a criminal cause, was made by Jesse Nichols of Oakland, one of the attorneys for Clifford L. Andrus, 33, of Richmond, charged with manslaughter testimony in whose trial ended today. Nichols has been associated in many civil cases in this county with Attorney Thomas M. Carlson of Richmond but never before has he ventured into criminal practice. It was therefore with a great deal of interest that court officials and habitués awaited his appearance before the jury. After his masterly presentation of the facts and the convincing argument he voiced in behalf of his client it was agreed that Nichols was equally at home and equally efficient in either branch of the law.

His argument was preceded by the opening statement for the prosecution by Deputy District Attorney Homer Patterson. His presentation was logical and sincere and provoked much favorable comment.

DEFENDANT TELLS STORY

The final witness in the trial was the defendant, who told without variation the same story he related to Melvin Myatt, district attorney's investigator, following the fatality, before the coroner's inquest and the grand jury.

The evening of the fatal mishap he went to the home of Dave Lewis in San Pablo, where he had one drink of wine and then proceeded to Maple hall to a dance where, (Continued on Page 8)

Three Are Charged With Ark Murder

ANTIOCH, Feb. 24.—UP—Deputy sheriffs armed with tear gas guns today escorted in secrecy three men from Martinez to Antioch for arraignment on charges of first degree murder growing out of the "ark" death of 86 year old Allen P. Knight, Contra Costa county pioneer.

The three men, Lewis Sly, 36, Fall Sutton, 38, and Roy Dussey, 30, were accused of beating the aged man to death after he refused to give them a revolver which they assertedly intended to pawn for liquor money.

Threats of mob violence, which appeared on two occasions since the trio were taken into custody February 15, prompted officials to transfer the suspects under heavy guard to the Antioch court.

Knight died yesterday in the Martinez county hospital from injuries assertedly inflicted by the three (Continued on Page 8)

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 24—UP—Reginald Denny, a long time motion picture actor, who has ascended the heights, shined from popularity finally to attain a solid and spectacular success in films, has one distinction that sets him apart from the usual star.

It is his record for giving performances before English royalty. He has trod the footboards while the ranking members of the House of Windsor became critical from the spectators' side of the footlights.

Denny, who currently is appearing in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production of "Romeo and Juliet," appeared before English royalty when he was 6 years old.

He was the boy member of the command cast that produced "Christmas Carol" at Sandringham in 1899. Queen Victoria termed Denny "a manly little fellow" he relates.

His next appearance before the Queen did not draw such compliments, however. She attended the Court theater where a company, of which Denny was a member, was producing "The Royal Family." It was an attempt to depict the life of the Empire's rulers—a daring thing for its time.

Queen Victoria attended the play with Albert Edward, then Prince of Wales. She left before the final curtain although the Prince did not accompany her.

"The Queen became irritated by the impersonation of herself," recalls Denny. "Mrs. Calvert, a famous actress of the period, was enacting the dowager Queen.

"The Prince of Wales however, had a friend in the cast. He was Lord Rosslyn who had the stage name of Kyrle.

"It all resulted in a lot of newspaper talk. Some said the Queen shouldn't have walked out—others said she did the right thing and chided her son for not accompanying her. It all was good publicity for the play."

GEO. ARLISS IN "MISTER HOBO" AT FOX TODAY

George Arliss in "Mister Hobo" in which he impersonates a lovable vagabond with genuine love of the life of a hobo, is the main attraction for the bank night program screening at the Fox theater today.

The other feature is "The Public Menace" in which Jean Arthur, Geo. Murphy and Douglas Dumbrille are starred.

As "Slick" the hobo, George Arliss has a role to his liking, and one which has already won him the plaudits of reviewers and the acclaim of the movie-going public. It is noteworthy that "Mister Hobo" is the first picture in which Arliss is seen without the habiliments of magnificence, such as in "The Iron Duke," "The House of Rothschild" to mention only two of his most recent films.

The story of "The Public Menace" relates the hectic misadventures of a newspaper reporter and ship manicurist who get themselves involved in a thrilling manhunt for a gangster, affectionately called "Public Rat No. 1."

The girl, needing an American husband to get into the country, offers the glib reporter a story about an escaped kidnaper's confession which she possesses provided he marries her. He agrees, only to be fired when he submits the wild yarn to his editor.

From that point on things begin to happen, ending in a thrilling gun fight between gangsters and the police in the city room of a newspaper office.

Michael Bauer, State Pioneer, Taken By Death

Last rites will be conducted from the Wilson and Kratzer chapel Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock for the late Michael Bauer, well known Richmond resident who came to California in a covered wagon, 78 years ago. He died at his home 1208 Barrett avenue on Sunday night following a short illness.

Rev. J. A. TenBroeck will officiate at the services and interment will be in Sunset View cemetery.

Deceased was 83 years of age and was a native of Missouri. It took six months for Bauer and his family to make the covered-wagon trip.

Settling in El Dorado county, where the city of Placerville is now located, the family moved to Stockton. Bauer was a cattleman and a rancher. He retired and came to Richmond 18 years ago.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Bauer; three daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Reeb, of Richmond, Mrs. Eunice Fipps of Newport Beach and Miss Emelia R. Bauer, Richmond school teacher; a son, Harold J. Bauer of Richmond, and a brother, Joseph Bauer of Hornitos.

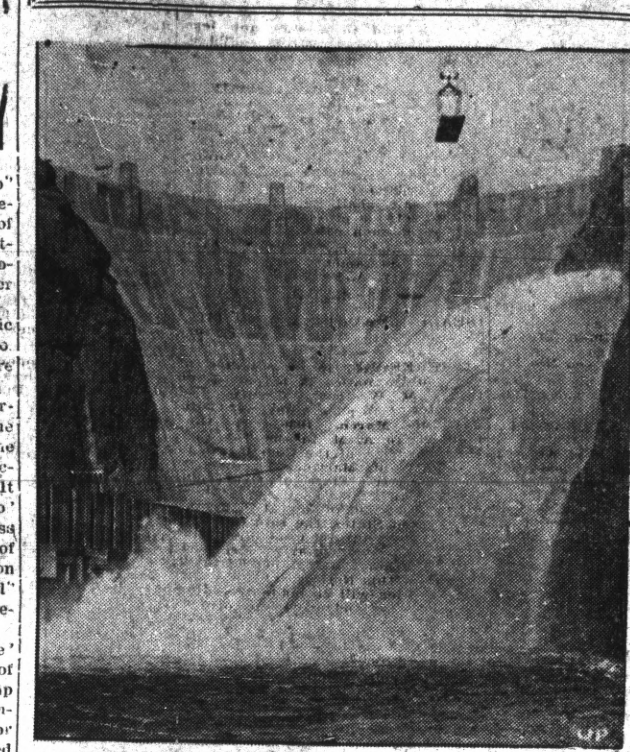

Miss Mariam E. Reeb of Richmond, a granddaughter, and several nieces and nephews survive also. A daughter, Ethel Bauer, passed away in 1902.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—How desperate is the game of tit-for-tat going on between Germany, France, Great Britain and Russia is indicated in confidential dispatches cabled here. It would be amusing if it were not so packed with dynamite.

The one question uppermost in the chancelleries of Europe is: "How long will Hitler wait?" It is chalked up as a dead certainty that when Hitler is ready he will strike.

Latest French worry is alleged German armaments in the demilitarized Rhineland.

The French first pointed to large, brick plants and cement works in the Rhineland, which looked suspiciously like disguised fortresses.

The Germans replied that they had a right to make bricks even in a demilitarized zone, but added that they had perfected a secret brick process which they did not want inspected.

The French then pointed to Germany's underground airdromes in the Rhineland, capable of housing thousands of planes. The German's replied that there was nothing in the Treaty of Versailles to prevent them from housing commercial planes underground.

Finally, the French pointed to 40,000 German troops in the Rhineland.

To this the Germans replied: "That is a mistake. We have 30,000 troops. But they are Brown Shirts, and we need them to maintain order."

F. D. R., JR.

The visit of Harold A. Wolff, czar of the Harvard cram-school, to the White House recently has disclosed a secret scholastic skeleton in the Roosevelt family closet.

Wolff runs the tutoring bureau just outside the Harvard Yard, to which students in difficulty flock to prepare for examinations.

Alleged reason for his pilgrimage to Washington was to confer with the President regarding the Democratic campaign organization in New England. But this was not the real reason.

It was really far simpler than that. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Jr., Harvard junior, made the Dean's list at mid-year examinations this year, a feat almost comparable to halving the New Deal budget.

The Dean's list is a periodic honor roll of students ranking high in scholastic marks.

At one point in his collegiate career, Franklin's standing was so poor that he disappeared from college for about a month, going into seclusion at the White House to catch up with his work.

Harvard authorities were in an embarrassing spot. There was some talk that he might have to be dropped. But Harold Wolff saved the day.

So last week Wolff trekked down to the White House, with his wife and even the secretary of his tutoring bureau.

Two Arrested In Accidents Over Week-End

Two persons were arrested in four automobile accidents reported in Richmond and El Cerrito over the week-end.

Mrs. Gene Walke, of 936 Adams street, El Cerrito, was arrested early Sunday morning on charges of hit-and-run driving after she allegedly drove away from the scene of a head-on collision with a car driven by E. Gorman of Oakland at San Pablo and Fairmont avenues. A companion, Gus Carlson, of Albany, was arrested on charges of intoxication. Mrs. Walke is free on $1000 bail.

Jim Kahn, 46, of 1730 Butte street, Richmond Annex, was freed on $500 bail following his arrest on charges of intoxication after his car collided with a pole at the intersection of Panhandle boulevard and Sacramento avenue.

Cars driven by Mrs. Amy Brown of Alameda and L. Rago, 22, of 449 Eleventh street, Richmond, collided at Panhandle boulevard and Panama avenue. Damage was slight and no one was injured.

Miss Doris Williams, 22, of 324 Sixty-first avenue, Oakland, lost control of her machine and crashed into a light pole at Twelfth and Macdonald early Sunday. She was not injured.

their gold notes for gold.

Government attorneys assert that even if the claimants should win a verdict in the Court of Claims, they could not collect inasmuch as Congress has barred the door to appropriations for paying damage claims arising from such suits.

Real motive behind the fifty-three suits is to maneuver a new revision of the dollar devaluation act by the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court had denied claims to damages by the plaintiffs on the ground that they had not proven any losses. The pending suits are attempts to substantiate such claims. If successful the way will then be open to bring the whole issue again before the Supreme Court.

Several foreign firms are among the fifty-three claimants. One of the suits revolves around a $10 gold note; John M. Perry, the plaintiff, claims the government owes him $112.50 in interest accrued since the date the Treasury refused to redeem his note in gold.

The test case is expected to be the one brought by Robert A. Taft, son of the late Chief Justice. It is No. 1 on the docket, as it covers all the points involved.

On the docket of the U. S. Court of Claims are fifty-three suits, constituting about the most unusual legal action seen in the Capital for five years. They are an outgrowth of the Administration's dollar devaluation policy and are scheduled for argument next month.

The fifty-three claimants seek $8,000,000 damages from the government, on the ground that they lost this amount by the Government's gold policy forbidding them to cash

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—With both Fannie Brice and Beatrice Lillie in action on the New York boards, theatergoers need have no lack of laughs these wintry nights. Raucous Fannie is queen of the knock-down and drag-out school of comedy, while dainty Bea is chief exponent of the needle-pricking variety of satire. Each of the funny ladies has her rabid partisans, who will argue with each other at the drop of a pun about their favorite's superiority. Combine Bea's "Toasted Vienna" with Fannie's "Moralistic Moe" however, and you have all the laughs your diet requires.

Leading artists in town are organizing to fight war, fascism and other bogeys of the day. Rockwell Kent, Joe Jones, Paul Manship, Art Young and others spoke at a Town Hall rally the other night. They're better painters than orators.

The Little Carnegie Playhouse on West 57th Street is still one of the most amusing movie houses on the island. In the lobby are ping-pong tables, chess boards, dancing rooms and other sportive items. It helps balance the accounts when the film isn't so good.

TOO MUCH—New York kids get pretty tough playing with street corner gangs, but the most hard-boiled item I've heard in months concerns the lives of an old son of a man who lives up near Harlem. The lad is always getting into trouble, yet always he comes out of it with bones intact.

The youngster was playing in a crowded street the other day, when he dashed after a fugitive rubber ball and ran right under the wheels of a heavy truck. That night I met the father, who was on his way to the hospital.

"Is your son badly hurt?" I inquired.

"Oh, no," he replied. "I'm going up to see the driver of the truck."

It is Christmas Eve on Houseboat Row, squalid river colony. Big Adam, evangelist, holds services in his houseboat Mission, little knowing that his son Dan, lured by two crooks, has got into serious trouble. Dan was offered fifty dollars to hold up a jewelry store but, when he entered the store, found the jeweler murdered. The murder will be pinned on him. He seeks shelter at Luke Connors' floating bar, down the Row from his father's Mission. Meanwhile, the wealthy Vincent Rooke has come to see Luke's daughter Nightingale, whom he loves. Vincent is stone deaf, but has learned to read lips. When police come to arrest Dan, charging him with murder, Nightingale makes Vincent wait in a little room, simply telling him that some "trouble" has arisen.

And he wanted to have Nightingale in his arms again—to shield her from whatever this mysterious trouble was.

He looked toward the couple in the opposite corner. He saw the man lean closer to the girl, thought, "They're in love, too." Idly, he watched the man's lips read them as he said, "Baby, you don't know how crazy I am about you!"

The girl turned a ring on her finger, smiled up at him. The man took a swallow of his drink, said, "Drink up, little one. We're going to clear out of here in a couple of minutes. She did not hurry, however—sipped slowly from her glass.

SHE was dressed in a bright red silk dress, with a wide lace collar fastened with a clasp on her shoulder. Her hat was a turban of iridescent spangles, underneath which was spread a row of light black curls.

The man was thin and wiry. His face was hard, and he had a tense, nervous look about him. So that he would not appear to be staring, Vincent rose and walked to the bar—ready for another? the bartender belted.

"Yes—same thing."

The pianist swung around in his chair, gazed mournfully toward the array of bottles. The bartender laughed. "Know what he wants?" he yelled at Vincent, and winked.

Vincent tossed a bill on the bar. "Let him order," he said.

Returning to his table again, he saw that the couple had become deadlocked in a discussion. The girl kept nodding her head, a faint smearing smile on her face. They were whispering, but Vincent could still read their lips.

THE MAN leaned toward the girl. "You wouldn't turn me down now, would you, after I got what you wanted for Christmas? You wouldn't—would you?"

She shrugged.

"Didn't you promise?" he whispered, his narrow eyes suddenly stricken.

Again she shrugged. The man reached for her hand. "But you've got to marry me! After—after what I've done for you tonight?"

There was something in his attitude that riveted Vincent's attention. He looked away for a moment, but his eyes were drawn back. The girl had apparently sworn, Vincent walked to the end of the room to a table opposite that where the couple sat. The girl looked nervously toward him. He saw the man pat her hand reassuringly, saw his lips murmur, "Don't worry. He's deaf as a post."

Vincent sipped his drink slowly. He could not understand this curious absence of Luke and Nightingale. Where could they have gone? What had happened?

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Eye Lotion Is as Important on Medicine Shelf As Tooth Wash

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

IF YOU read yesterday's column you will know that in your medicine cabinet or toilet kit you should have an eye cup and some soothing lotions or salves just as necessarily as you have a brush and some sort of cleansing medicine for your teeth. Have your specialist—and of course you go to a specialist when you need professional care for your eyes—give you a tube of a stable eye salve and keep it at hand.

At any sign of inflammation insert a small amount of the salve under the eye lid. This reduces the irritation and often counteracts the offending cause.

There are certain experiences to which we subject our eyes which should always be followed by careful hygiene and some medication. These occasions would include long motor drives in either rain or very bright sunlight, bathing in public swimming pools, hiking in the country when vegetation is active.

"Dust and pollen, flying particles of all sorts, poisons given off by certain forms of vegetation and carried by the wind, contagion spread by use of a common gymnasium equipment or in swimming pools—all these sources of eye troubles can be counteracted by the hygienic care of the eyes afterward."

Eye Care Important

There is a particular form of eye affliction to which some folks are periodically addicted. That is an eruption we call a sty, a much-to-be-dreaded form of inflammation, suppurative and general misery. We shall consider that in some detail at another time, for while we are talking of precaution, we want to note other facts. Our state laws of public health recognize the very great importance of the care of the eyes and require special attention to the eyes of the new-born child. Every physician and every nurse must use the prescribed antiseptics in the eyes of the child as they are first opened to the light and mothers are to be instructed in the proper aftercare.

I sometimes wonder if there ought not to be some follow-up work in this line. Little babies being taken out for their airing without any protection to their eyes from the sun and wind.

We should like to protect very strongly against the use of hanging bright-hued toys across the child's carriage where the motion of the vehicle keeps them prancing and dancing before the bewildered little eyes. There are enough strange and unusual sights confronting the youngster as he makes his first sortie into a big and rather scary world. The contortions and colors of the dancing toys hanging between him and the light only increase his excitement and the confusion of his mental images.

Double Consideration

A most important thing to remember about the eye is not only a most delicate piece of machinery, but that there are two of them and nothing must be allowed to interfere with their correlation if we want them to function in comfort and with efficiency.

The eyes move in response to stimuli, or a combination of stimuli, which may reach them from different directions in the brain centers, but the urge to move must be distributed equally to the corresponding muscles of both eyes. This process is called one of "accommodation."

It is necessarily one of nerve strain and muscle effort, but we can do much to keep the strain from growing excessive. Rest in a darkened room, or the use of dark glasses relieves this strain of accommodation.

The provision of a properly diffused light in which to do close work is imperative. If we would spare eye strain, when need of muscular effort is reduced, the nerve energy can be spared for restorative purposes.

Short Cuts

A dress or wrap with flowing sleeves is a menace to safety if worn while on kitchen duty, especially when putting down the stoves where there is danger of their catching on pot handles.

According to the consensus of the homemaker should never buy more than a pound at a time. For no matter how air-tight the container may be, the tea in it is exposed to the air as frequently as tea is made. And exposure to air has an effect upon the flavor and aroma of tea.

Raw potato cut up into cubes and added to fat that is to be melted will act as a clarifier. Cover the pieces of fat and potato with cold water and place in a slow oven to cook for about four hours, or until the scraps are well browned and the water has evaporated.

He Was Ordered to Be a Lawyer

By TALBOT LAKE

DESTINY makes a lot of difference in a man's life, and if you don't think so consider the case of W. R. Johnson, who has been appointed acting chief counsel of customs in Washington. Mr. Johnson had less than six years of being mixed up with a government job, but was drafted and now is reconciled to his fate.

The hero of this little story was ten years in the New York Tax Department and managed to keep himself out of the limelight consistently. Then Capt. John X. A. Eble, Commissioner of Customs in the Hoover administration, hearing about him, ordered Johnson to Washington.

When he heard what Eble wanted he said: "But you need a lawyer for that job, and I am not a lawyer."

But Eble came right back: "You can go to law school here."

Somewhat sadly he and Mrs. Johnson settled down in Washington—sadly, because they had made themselves a nice little home in Manhattan and hated to leave their world so changed. Both of them attended George Washington Law School, and it wasn't long before the head of the family made a name for himself as a lawyer.

Now the couple like the new home, because, for one thing, it is a good place to bring up children and they have two. Besides, the transfer to the Capital amounted most decidedly to a fine promotion.

Falling Hair Best Treated By Shampoo

By JACQUELINE HUNT

THERE is one unhappy subject about which we seldom write—falling hair. Hundreds of young women, and older ones, too, view their thinning locks with alarm and want to know how they can do something to restore their hair to its former beauty.

The cause for falling hair is sometimes difficult to trace. In some cases, of course, it is due to illness or improper care of the hair. Sometimes dandruff or a scalp disease may be the source of the trouble. In some cases no one knows just what it is.

Often thinning hair will respond to good treatment, although there is nothing that will work in all cases. The general health and living habits must be examined. Whenever it is possible, you should go to a scalp specialist for advice and, if necessary, a course of treatments.

For hair that is merely weak simple home care, faithfully given, will bring about a noticeable improvement in a few weeks. The hair and scalp must be kept thoroughly clean. Frequent shampooing is advisable in most cases, although when the hair is exceedingly thin and dry it shouldn't be washed oftener than every three weeks.

You can buy splendid shampoo preparations ready to use, or you can make your own from this simple formula: Melt a cake of shaved castle soap in two cups hot water. Strain and set aside to cool. Then add two tablespoons bay rum and one-fourth teaspoon powdered borax. Mix thoroughly. Separate a fresh egg and beat thoroughly. Add to enough of the soap mixture for each shampoo. A hot oil shampoo given at home is also beneficial, if you can plan ahead for it. If you are a business girl, for instance, you might plan the oil treatment for Saturday evenings after your date. Apply warm olive oil or a special oil to the hair, parting frequent intervals so the oil will soak into the scalp. Tie a light towel securely about the head and leave the oil overnight. Be sure to use enough soap to remove all of the oil not absorbed.

Since falling hair has a tendency to look stringy and rough and retards being set into waves or ringlets, it needs extra brushing to overcome the sulky condition. Brushing arouses the circulation and removes the dead hairs. Many women avoid brushing when their hair shows a tendency to fall. This is the worst mistake they could make, because dead hairs remaining in the follicle discourage regrowth. So brush, and brush hard, and though your hair comes out in handfuls.

A good tonic, blended especially to treat this condition, can be used daily at first and then, after there is some improvement, two or three times a week. In cases of extreme dryness a scalp pomade of some kind to lubricate the ends of the hair. It should be massaged into the scalp at the crown and around the hairline where the hair tends to fall most rapidly.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "I have a fairly good complexion, but I always have one or two pimples on my face. What causes them and what can I do to keep my skin perfectly clear? Also, will you please repeat your recipe for bleaching hair on the face?"—Mrs. B. T. S.

Nobody knows exactly what causes pimples. In some cases it may be a diet that is too rich in sweets or fats; in others it is lowered resistance to infection and in some cases sensitivity to some food, drug or cosmetic. If you have occasion to consult your doctor ask him about your diet. Keep your skin scrupulously clean at all times and your elimination regular. Use rubbing alcohol or an antiseptic solution on the pimples after you have opened them and extracted the contents. Here is the recipe for a bleach that may be used for superfluous hair on the face: Three tablespoons peroxide and six drops of ammonia. Cleanse the skin before applying the bleach to the hairs. Allow to dry. Do not use this too near the eyes or nostrils.

QUESTION: "My hair is thick and has a nice color, but it is never really as bright as I want it to be. I do not seem to have dandruff, yet there is a fine white powdery substance that comes off on my brush and comb—also, my scalp feels a little sticky at times. What causes this?"—Mayme.

You are not rinsing all of the soap out of your hair when you shampoo. Use a liquid soap that starts with and use enough to work up a stiff lather that will really cleanse your hair and scalp. Three applications are usually needed. Then rinse, adding the juice of two lemons (strained).

Sports Clothes Break Out In Spring-like Colors

By IRENE VALE

New York — Style sleuths who are doing their stuff at Palm Beach and Miami report sports colors are strong and clear. They seem to think pinks on the yellowish or salmonish casts are the favorite pinks to use in combination with white. They send enthusiastic reports of sunny yellows, which is nothing new really, for Palm Beach has always loved to reflect the sunlight. I note, too, there is considerable mention of aqua, which reminds me to mention that while navy is worn it does not seem to be as formidable a beach color as it was last season.

Among the colors accepted special mention should be given to happy tan, a shade which makes a happy combination with sunburn, and is effective with several of the season's favorite colors. Turquoise with happy tan is so often repeated that it seems only fair to list it as tops.

The handkerchief bandana is more frequently noted in Palm Beach sports costumes—worn for golf, for riding and other action sports. This observation signifies that a corresponding strengthening of this bandana fashion may be looked for in bathing suit fashions. This is especially in line with the continued emphasis on peasant styles for the beach interpreted in cottons, while the newer interest in Martineque millinery, based on bandana head draperies, indicates another reason for expecting more bandana bathing and beach fashions.

If your mind is on town tops it is well to mention for the 'teenth age that gray is the color of the hour, and shop windows are united in selecting it as the spring neutral, which is happiest with violet accents or with white lingerie ones, or both.

A few nights ago a very comprehensive fashion show devoted entirely to simpler cotton and linen frocks was presented before a large and admiring group who were quick to see the opportunities of limited means. All of the dresses shown had short sleeves, usually of the so-called cap variety. Necks were on the high side, either with turn-down collars or the straight Chinese neckband, the exception being an occasional square-neck bodice. Shirtwaist frocks, particularly those with pleated bosom scored.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "Can you suggest a simple formula for popularity? I have many friends that I should like to keep.—A. M."

ANSWER: Be punctual for appointments. And don't forget your social obligation. Friendship has a way of dropping off when one does not exert himself in keeping up with friends. Friendship is give and take, calling for continued respect of the spark of interest.

QUESTION: "When a man and girl are dining out, who pours the tea?"—L. P."

ANSWER: If each one is served a separate pot of tea, each serves for two, however, it is up to the host to pour. If it is a Dutch treat, he does the pouring. Just as a same, having assumed the responsibility of entertaining the lady "by special arrangement."

Big Breakfast Necessary for The Children

By JUDITH WILSON

IS BREAKFAST the most popular meal in your home? If it isn't it should be. Winter breakfasts are so important for working people and school children who must dash out into the cold immediately afterward. Go a little lighter on your luncheon if you wish, but be sure your breakfasts are hearty and delicious.

Keep breakfast menus simple, but vary them in little ways. You should be able to serve a month of breakfasts without repeating exactly the same thing twice.

Be liberal with your fruits. Just because you start the meal with a big glass of orange, grapefruit, or pineapple juice is no reason you should omit sweetened fruits, preserves and jams. In my household sweetened, stewed apricots are a favorite when served with golden brown, piping hot toast literally dripping with butter. Add tiny brown sausages and good coffee as much as everyone can drink and you have a meal everyone will enjoy.

BREAKFASTS

Baked Apples with Marmalade—Cream
Crisped Bacon on Toast
Poached Eggs—Crispers
Coffee or Cocoa

Pineapple Juice with Sliced Bananas
Toasted Shredded Wheat with Hot Milk and Raisins
Small Sausages—Drip Blent Honey—Coffee—Milk

The packaged, ready-to-serve cereals offer other opportunities for variety. Toast shredded wheat biscuits (there are a half dozen different kinds), pour over hot milk, dot with butter, sprinkle with salt and serve at once. Grape-nuts served with hot milk or made into crunchy, nutty-flavored muffins are another suggestion. Or toast puffed or flaked cereals and sprinkle them over baked bananas. Pass light cream and brown sugar with this dish.

Crisp, golden brown strips of fried mush are always welcomed eagerly. Do not think you have to make cornmeal mush each time you want to serve this dish. Just take any left-over cooked wheat cereal, turn into a small loaf pan or refrigerator dish, and set away until next morning. Slice thin, dip in flour, then brown in butter. Serve with maple syrup.

French Toast

Try French toast with apple sauce that has been made spicy with cinnamon and serve tiny sausages or crisp curls of broiled bacon with it. Your French toast itself may be varied by substituting the juice of canned fruits for the milk in the egg batter in which you dip your toast. Be liberal with your fat in frying the toast. I like to use half butter and half vegetable shortening or lard. Drain on brown paper when done and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Creamed Bacon Fry 3 slices bacon until light brown, drain and chop coarsely. To 1/4 cup of bacon drippings add 5 tablespoons flour and stir until smooth, then add 2 1/2 cups milk and salt and pepper enough to taste. When smooth and thickened add the bacon and serve on crisp toast points.

Hot Breads

Hot breads should be a rule for the first meal of the day. Drop biscuits may be stirred up in a jiffy and if you will routine and mix the dry ingredients the night

TASTY AND NOURISHING

CHOCOLATE BREAD PUDDING: 1 1/2 cups unsweetened chocolate, cut in pieces, 3 cups milk, 1 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 3 eggs, slightly beaten, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 1/2 cups stale bread, cut in 1/2-inch cubes.

Add chocolate to milk in double boiler and heat. When chocolate is melted combine sugar, salt, and eggs. Add chocolate mixture gradually, stirring vigorously. Add vanilla. Place bread in greased baking dish. Pour mixture over it. Place dish in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 50 to 60 minutes, or until pudding is firm.

MODERN WOMEN

The Question of Two Couples and the Jealousy Of One of the Wives

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

MY DEAR MRS. MARTIN: My husband and I have been seeing a good deal of another couple, and while it has been very pleasant I wish we would stop it without causing any unpleasantness. The other man's wife is showing a very silly side, and I don't like it. Her husband does not seem to notice anything, but I can't help it, and don't think I'm being jealous. My husband just laughs at me. This woman is pretty and vain, and I don't like the way things are going, but what can I do? The two men are each other and I have no particular reason to mistrust my husband, still, you know what men are, how easily flattered. What should I do?

"Thirty-two." You should watch your step and be most careful not to rush into a situation which may be entirely of your own making.

There is always an element of danger in the close proximity of two congenial couples. I suppose that is one of the reasons for the good times such couples have together. The element of attraction being missing, very obviously means the couples would have little in common. The risk is mutual, if one wants to put it that way. One woman's chance of being made miserable by the other is always possible. The same may be said of the husbands.

The Inferiority Complex

The one who is most inclined toward jealousy, or who suffers most from an inferiority complex, is the one who, by the very nature of things, is going to get the worst of it, even though there is no reason other than exists in her own mind.

You have flattered your husband by telling him this other woman is attracted to him. His probable just loved being told that—got quite a kick out of the idea you were a bit plucked, also that you still regarded him as an attractive man. But as your jealousy develops sufficiently to make him uncomfortable he isn't going to like it—not a little bit.

One reason men give for being drawn to women other than their wives is that their wives take no pains to flatter them; in fact, they go out of their way to stress the fact that they consider their husbands dubs or worse. You have shown your husband he has possibilities, and who knows but what you have put the idea into his head, in which case you must be fair enough to take the responsibility.

You are creating a situation out of whole cloth. Try to curb your imagination and to stop developing drama out of a pleasant little foursome. As an asset, cultivate other couples, bring them into the picture. Use whatever means occurs to you, except the asinine one of kicking over the apple cart, by which procedure you are bound to be shown up considerable of a fool. She must have a pretty poor opinion of herself when she feels unequal to holding her own in any such situation as you describe.

How Much Should He Make?

"Dear Mrs. Martin: I am a young man of steady habits and with a job that nets me $25.00 a week. I suppose I might add that I have prospects. The point is, am I marry on this sum? The girl I want to marry says, 'No'—she won't marry me until I make more. She's got a good job, but has not expressed herself one way or the other about keeping it after we marry. I would like to marry her now and have her keep her job, but I have not had the nerve to come right out and tell her so. She's a grand gal and has plenty of chances to do better, as far as money goes, but I am tops with her. So what? Dan."

Pardon the bromide, but—faint heart never won fair lady. It shouldn't require a great deal of nerve to ask this grand gal how she stands on the subject of juggling a job and a husband. She might be quite willing to, but I rather gather she isn't, since she has never made her position clear on this matter.

If you are tops with her you have nothing much to fear. She may feel you will work harder to get her than you would to keep her after she is won. I am not qualified to judge of your standard of living, but I will hazard a guess that I should think it would be pretty risky to marry on the sum you mention, particularly as your girl is bound to feel she has made a considerable mistake in giving up her job. Better try her out on the 50-50 basis.

Mrs. Martin will be glad to answer in this column questions of general interest. Mrs. Martin cannot reply to questions of every correspondent. Names and addresses of correspondents are not published. Address her care of this paper.

men when they appeared at his 'ark' home along the San Joaquin river banks.

According to Chief of Police Al LeRoy, the men confessed they had been drinking and had run out of liquor. Having no money, they went to Knight's cabin to obtain his revolver. LeRoy said they told him:

"When he refused to turn it over to them, they entered the house and struggled with Knight for possession of the weapon. It was said, Knight was found unconscious the next day, his skull fractured and his jaw broken in four places. A hatchet, believed to have been used by his assailants was found in the cabin.

As a result, plans for today's arraignment were kept secret. The men were brought before Justice of the Peace Mathew Ward while deputies stood guard around the hearing room.

Dr. John Fitzgerald of Martinez, LeRoy and Deputy Sheriff Louis Campfield testified. Ward held the suspects for trial in the Contra Costa county court on charges of first degree murder. The trial date will be set later.

A crowd was beginning to gather when the hearing was completed, and the guards rushed their prisoners back to the county jail without meeting interference.

He also saw Andrus take a drink of wine at the San Pablo dance, the same drink to which Mrs. Deniz testified. He also said Andrus had one drink of wine at this place before going to the dance.

Mrs. Nellie Mae Lewis, his wife, gave similar testimony and said she believed Andrus was sober when she last saw him.

John J. Smith of Richmond also saw Andrus at the San Pablo dance and said he was sober.

preceding and after the dance, he had a drink of wine. At Rodero he had a highball. There he met E. A. Lawrence, custodian of the court-house at Martinez and wife, and Deputy Sheriff Joe Longo and wife. He accepted an invitation to eat breakfast at the Lawrence home in Richmond and was on his way there when the accident happened. Andrus maintained that he was driving on the right hand side of the road at about 35 miles an hour when the Christensen car came along at the foot of Garrity Hill. He said the Christensen car failed to make the turn and crashed into his car, severely injuring him about the head, nose and face, for which injuries he was treated at the Richmond Cottage Hospital. At no time during the night, he maintained, did he feel the effects of the few drinks he had taken and that he was sober at all times, although dazed from his injuries following the accident.

Attorney Thomas M. Carlson will close for the defense this morning to be followed by District Attorney Francis P. Healey after which the charge will be made and the case will go to the jury. Other testimony was given yesterday for the defense.

Andrus was indicted by the grand jury following a collision near Pinole last June 30, in which Miss Virginia Christensen, Salinas school teacher, was fatally injured.

George Deemer, who was a passenger in the car driven by Andrus, was the first witness today. He told the jury he believed Andrus was sober. He said he saw Andrus drink a drink of wine at the dance, and testified that Andrus, in fact, had cautioned him against drinking.

Testimony that she believed Andrus was sober was given by Mrs. Beh Deniz, sister of Charles Markle, with whom she was riding in a car behind that driven by Andrus.

David G. Lewis of Richmond, who was present at the dance in San Pablo, also said he thought Andrus was sober. He also saw Andrus take a drink of wine at the San Pablo dance, the same drink to which Mrs. Deniz testified. He also said Andrus had one drink of wine at this place before going to the dance.

After Knight's death last night, another crowd of men appeared in Martinez and shouted warnings to the prisoners.

As a result, plans for today's arraignment were kept secret. The men were brought before Justice of the Peace Mathew Ward while deputies stood guard around the hearing room.

Dr. John Fitzgerald of Martinez, LeRoy and Deputy Sheriff Louis Campfield testified. Ward held the suspects for trial in the Contra Costa county court on charges of first degree murder. The trial date will be set later.

A crowd was beginning to gather when the hearing was completed, and the guards rushed their prisoners back to the county jail without meeting interference.

A similar complaint was lodged by the Contra Costa Central Labor Council.

Lease On Submerged Land Is Exchanged For Wharf Terminal

the city in cash instead of being credited to the improvement fund, as at present. The Parr Company owns the terminal at Pt. San Pablo and has a franchise from the city for 25 years. This new lease for 50 years will place the company in position to attract industries and make developments of the area, on a much larger scale than could possibly be carried out under the terms of the present short franchise.

"During the past three years the Parr-Richmond Terminal Corporation has voluntarily allowed the City of Richmond 25 percent of the profits from Terminal No. 4, and these profits have been applied to the cost of facilities constructed by the terminal company at the inner harbor."

"Under the new plan the city will receive sufficient money to take care of the insurance on all its terminal properties and also to take care of the minor repairs. Further, the cost of maintenance, repairs and dredging in connection with any of the facilities now located or hereafter constructed upon the premises are to be paid by the Parr company. The net income which the city will derive from this leasehold will be over 5 percent on the assessed valuation of $136,000."

SANFORD FAVORS LEASE

P. M. Sanford, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who attended the council meeting, declared himself strong in favor of the new lease.

"There can be no doubt but that this is an excellent deal for the city, one that will bring returns to the entire community," he declared.

PARR TALKS

W. D. Parr, president of the terminal company, said there is nothing to announce in connection with any new industries for the Pt. San Pablo zone at this moment, but that the deal puts him in a good position to negotiate.

"The terms have been worked out after long discussion," he said. "I feel sure it will work out to the advantage of all concerned. The land involved in the lease is less than 5 pct. of the land turned back to the city by the State legislature at the last session. It includes an area in the immediate vicinity of Pt. San Pablo, now submerged, which must be developed to make it practical from an industrial and shipping point of view."

MAYOR FAVORS

Mayor W. W. Scott, who was confined to his home by illness, sent word that he was in favor of granting the lease.

"I have always felt," said Mayor Scott, "that the Parr lease was one of the best things that ever happened to the city. I include this new lease in that same category."

activities among seamen of the fleet. Specific reference was made to sailors' salaries, urging sailors to "work for $30 per month wages for seamen and marine privates, restoration of a $36 per year clothing allowance, free cleaning and pressing and government maintenance of dependents of enlisted men" and also urged "free access to advancement for enlisted men."

URGED TO JOIN

The pamphlet in question urged sailors to join the Third International, International Communist party, and other radical organizations. It contained articles attacking the naval service and reviling officers of the navy, police said. Sailors were urged not to re-enlist in the navy.

Police, co-operating with Department of Justice and naval intelligence officers, sought to connect the spread of propaganda with asserted efforts to sabotage naval and military aircraft operations in this area.

Lloyd Fishbe, came out of the death house and said: "Hauptmann is more cheerful."

The man whom Hoffman accused of lying on the Fleming witness stand is Millard Whited, a slow-spoken logger from the Jersey hills who cannot read well and who probably cannot define the word "perjury."

AWAIT WORD

But tonight Mrs. Anna Hauptmann merely was awaiting a nod from her lawyers to swear out a complaint against Whited. If she does it will challenge the legality of everything that has happened to Hauptmann since he was extradited from the Bronx, New York, and brought to New Jersey to be tried for murder.

Whited swore—at the extradition hearing in the Bronx and at the Fleming on trial—that he saw Hauptmann in the neighborhood of the Lindbergh home just prior to the kidnapping. It was on Whited's testimony, Hoffman contended, that Hauptmann was extradited and put on trial.
